Re : Clarification on HO Circular No. HO/MTD/CIR NO. 09/95 dated 17.07.1995 -
Endorsement on DL of Drivers driving vehicles carrying hazardous goods

Further, to the above captioned circular, It has been decided that henceforth wherever the Driving License of the driver, which is not carrying authorization from the RTA, for driving vehicles carrying dangerous or hazardous goods the claims can be settled on standard basis subject to the following:

The driver concerned has been given training as prescribed under Rule No. 9 of Chapter II of Central Motor Vehicles Rules 1989, by a Government Institute or a Government/Public Sector agency like M/s. IOCL, HPCL, BPCL, etc. and is accompanied by 'training certificate' issued by them.

The concerned office must also ensure that the above training certificate confirms the period of training as 3 days minimum and the certificate issuing Institute is recognized by the concerned State Government for this purpose.

It has also been decided that:

If the vehicle in respect of which the OD claim is reported, was meant for transporting dangerous or hazardous goods but at the material time of accident it was empty or not carrying dangerous or hazardous goods, the OD claim can be settled on standard basis, only on the production of a DL which was effective to drive that vehicle, without the endorsement or authorization of the RTA for driving vehicles carrying dangerous or hazardous goods or certificate of Training as per Rule 9, provided the claim is otherwise in order.

Please be guided accordingly & inform offices under your control.
